

Intervista parenti

My grandmother has French relatives who reside in Paris. They spent their childhoods and entire lives in France, but they visit Italy every summer with their families. After my grandmother moved to Italy, she became more independent and made the decision to work there. Since then, she has remained in Italy because she loves it. He completed his studies at the University of Genoa and then began teaching English to the local youth.

Apart from language, there aren't many differences between France and Italy. She arrived in Italy by train and arrived in Milan. In Italy, she didn't yet have parents, but she later met and messed with my grandfather and started a family.
